FOREWORD

The original edition of "Descendants of William Shurtleff of Plymouth and Marshfield, Massachusetts" was published by Benjamin (8) Shurtleff, son of Benjamin (7), No. 1158, in Volume I. This Benjamin was of the 8th generation but he designated himself as Benjamin (6th) because he was the sixth Benjamin to bear the name from Benjamin (1), son of Abiel (2), No. 3, in Volume I.

In the preliminary of his work, he gives credit as follows to:

1. Dr. Benjamin Shurtleff (5), 1774-1847. "Even when a young man he gathered much material from "Old Uncle Will", who had seen all of the second generation. Moreover, late in life he oftentimes visited Carver, the old home of his family, in order to obtain a "little more information"."

2. Dr. Nathaniel Bradstreet Shurtleff (6), son of Benjamin (5) above, 1810-1874, was a well-known and respected antiquarian, historian, and genealogist. He carried on from where his father stopped. In 1868, 1869 and 1870, he was Mayor of Boston.

Benjamin (6th) above, 1866-1952, devoted the major part of his life to the Shurtleff genealogy, got no financial gain and, in fact, died a poor man. We are indebted to him for carefully preserving the work of his predecessors, augmenting it with his own life-long research, and finally publishing two hundred and fifty sets in 1912. This two-volume edition totaled fourteen hundred and ninety-six pages and is a respected family record.

After 1912 until his death in 1952, this Benjamin continued gathering material. These notes, covering many hundred closely handwritten pages, were sent to Mrs. D. Ray Shurtliff of Salt Lake City, Utah, when he found he was not going to be able to carry on any further. She had been helpful to him and hoped to complete his work.

In 1962, the undersigned, Roy Lothrop Shurtleff (8) of San Francisco, California, undertook to supplement the genealogy by bringing the record through subsequent generations. In this effort he was encouraged by Benjamin's sister, Anna Cynthia Shurtleff, 1875-1967, of Medford, Massachusetts, and the above mentioned Mrs. D. Ray Shurtliff who turned over to him, with her blessings, Benjamin's supplemental notes.

Alfred J. Shurtliff, 1911-1970, published in 1960 a genealogy, "The Descendants of Luman Andros Shurtliff." Data from this book have been included herein, with permission of the author.

The original volumes and this revised edition represent the work of four members of the family covering a period of one hundred and seventy years.

Explanations of the additions and revisions

The additions to the 1912 volumes come, first, from Benjamin's notes, above mentioned; second, from material sent by members of the family; third, from professional genealogists and researchers who I had employed from time to time.

During the more than thirteen years devoted to this work, the undersigned built up a mailing list of over two thousand members of the family. Data supplied by them have been included after whatever checking was possible. Inaccuracies are known to exist because information from the same people sometimes changed in subsequent letters.

The previous volumes included only twenty-four names of the tenth generation. These new volumes fill in many of the eighth, ninth, and tenth generations, and add to the index one hundred and ninety-three names in the eleventh generation and six names in the twelfth. It also includes ten Shurtleff families and their descendants whom I have not been able to trace to a descendant of William (1) Shurtleff (see page 1045).

The main revisions have been twofold:

1. The original edition carried all descendants through all generations where information could be obtained. In this edition descendants of daughters have been carried only to the fourth generation from a Shurtleff male, the daughter being the second generation. This has allowed the elimination of many pages of the old books to make room for new names and has kept the new names to manageable proportions. Professional genealogists have concurred that this is sound practise.

2. Nathaniel Bradstreet Shurtleff and Benjamin (8) Shurtleff assumed, but never proved, that our Shurtleff family was descended through the first William from the Shiercliffe (various spellings) family of Ecclesfield, England. Because of this assumed connection, a seventeen page excerpt from that family's genealogy was included in the 1912 edition. It has not been made a part of these volumes. Following are amongst the studies I have made in attempting to prove the connection:

(a) Mrs. Shurtleff and I visited Ecclesfield, saw the beautiful old manor house (Whitley Hall) and inspected Ecclesfield Parish records in the Parish Church back to the sixteenth century, but found no William born 1624.

(b) Wrote to seven Shircliffe families in Sheffield, and my son, Lawton, visited the Percy Shirtcliffes there. We found great interest but no proof of a connection. We learned that Ecclesfield Shiercliffe scions had first been apprenticed to the Sheffield cutlers in about 1600. We searched Sheffield Parish records 1560-1635 and found ten references to Shirtcliffes, but none helped.

(c) Employed three different English genealogists over a period of years, without results.

(d) Have searched fourteen American publications of lists of emigrants and passengers to the colonies in the early seventeenth century, but found no record of our William.

John Camden Hotten in his "Emigrants to America, 1600-1700" says that records are quite incomplete — "Many lists were lost; there were none from Bristol". He also asks who were the companions of John Haynes and Rev. Thomas Hooker in 1633 on the "Griffin". A Thomas Mayhew was appointed in 1637 to keep a record of all persons who left England, but only a fraction of this list remains. Further, Hotten adds that only names were listed who legally left. There were thousands who emigrated otherwise.

Therefore, from information now in hand, I feel that this genealogy cannot, with certainty, go further back than the ten year old boy who was apprenticed to Thomas Clarke, a carpenter, September 2, 1634, in the Plymouth Colony.

EXPLANATIONS

1. Double-dating.

The double-dating which occurs in the mention of earlier generations is in conformity with the adoption by Great Britain in 1752 of the Gregorian Calendar in place of the older Julian Calendar.

2. Spelling of name.

There are several spellings of the family name but in the index of these volumes only Shurtleff is used. However, a considerable segment of the family use Shurtliff so in the main body of the books where names appear by generations, those are spelled thus —Shurtleff /iff/.

3. How to trace your ancestry if you are listed in the index.

(a) Get your number from the index. If you are not listed, get your parent's number.

(b) Look up that number in one of the volumes. This will give you data about your generation of your immediate family.

(c) To locate next preceding ancestor, hunt through the previous generation pages until you find your number as a subnumber. This gives you the name and number of your nearest ancestor.

(d) Repeat this procedure until you come to No. 1, the first William.

4. Intermarriages.

Down through the ages of the Shurtleff history, there were quite a number of intermarriages. In order to include as many children resulting from these marriages, I adopted the following procedure. When a female Shurtleff married a man with the name of Shurtleff, their children became descendants on the father's side of the family and not the wife's. When she married a cousin who was further removed from a male Shurtleff than herself, their children became descendants of her side of the family, thereby permiting an extra generation of their children to be included in the book.

Ecclesfield is about five miles due north of the famous town of Sheffield and about twenty from Scrooby, long since shown by Mr. Hunter to be the early gathering place of the Puritans before they left England for Holland. In this village at a seat called Whitley Hall* and at another called Ecclesfield Hall once resided the only family of which we have any knowledge, who bore the name previous to the appearance of William Shurtleff or any other person of the name in America. Therefore it is not unreasonable to suppose that he, living so near the nestlingplace of the Leyden Pilgrims and being of an enthusiastic age and ardent temperament, became fired by the spirit of adventure or inspired with the holy zeal of the Puritans, and thus became one of the first settlers of the town of Plymouth and one of the forefathers of New England.

This name, like others of ancient date, was variously spelled. First it appears as Chyrclyff, then Shircliff, later Schirclyff, and afterwards Shiercliffe. It is spelled in fifty* different ways as the vowels e, i, u, and y were very promiscuously used in both syllables, according to individual caprice or fashion. In New England the orthography is exceedingly various in old records, as the name is scarcely spelled twice in the same way, owing to the fact that writers spelled it according to the sound received by each. The first comer wrote it Shirtlef and his children Shurtlef. What induced his grandchildren to double the final letter and write their name Shurtleff cannot now be ascertained, but must be attributed to the fashion of the time in which they lived. There are Shurtleffs still living around Ecclesfield and at York, but the name is scarcely known in the south of England. However, there is one who lives in Ryde, Isle of Wight, and spells his name Shirtliff, according to the English custom. His father was born at Leeds and his grandfather came from Yorkshire. In this family there exists a tradition that the name Shircleff was derived from shire (a county) and cleft. Later it was changed to Shirtliff, the latter being easier to pronounce.

Nothing is known concerning the parentage of William Shurtleff, the exact time of his arrival in New England or the causes that led him to leave his native land at such a tender age. He was so young on his first appearance in Plymouth that he was bound apprentice there to Thomas Clarke for the term of eleven years commencing on May 16, 1634, as is made apparent by the following entry preserved on page 70, vol. 1, of the Plymouth Court Orders:

"September 2, 1634 William Shettle hath put himselfe an aprentise to. Thomas Clarke for the terme of eleuen yeares from the 16 of May last and at the end of the sayd terms the sayd Thomas is to cloth him with two sutes fit for such a seruant and also eyght Bushells of Indian Corne."

In olden times the word "servant" had a very different signification from its present use. Then it was generally applied to an apprentice and to any person who was in the employ of others, or in the words of an old lexicographer, "one who serves another." Now it is used to denote an individual whose occupation is menial in its nature.

The Thomas Clarke to whom young Shurtleff was apprenticed, was by trade a carpenter. He came to Plymouth in the Ann in the summer of 1623, where he dwelt until his decease in 1697. His gravestone, one of the oldest on Plymouth Burial Hill, marks his earthly resting-place. Without any apparent evidence he has been confounded by many with the mate or rather pilot of the renowned Mayflower. In 1643 Mr. Shurtleff was certainly an inhabitant of Plymouth, where he was enrolled as being of the required age to perform military service for the colony. Undoubtedly he remained there during the whole term of his apprenticeship, which terminated in May 1645. Such items as the following are not uncommon in the old records. The same "Will Shertcliffe for breaking the peace vpon John Smyth is fyned vs" on June 5, 1644; and on Oct. 2, 1650, the authorities "present James Cole of the towne of Plymouth for making of a batterie vppon William Shirtley of the aforesaid towne."

In 1646 Mr. Shurtleff appears in a list of names comprising the townsmen of Plymouth and at the General Court of the Colony held at Plymouth, June 3, 1656, he first appears in public life, being chosen one of "the Surveyors for the highwaies" for the town of Plymouth. In recording this event his name is written "William Shirtley"; and again he is found serving as juryman on Oct. 6, 1657, in a controversy between two residents of Plymouth. On June 7, 1659, "William Shurtley" was chosen constable for Plymouth and on the same day, as "William Shirtley," he was first on a list of names of "such as stand propounded to take vp their freedom." The following entry is made in the Colonial Court Orders under date of the first of May 1660; probably it is the last during his connection with Plymouth, of which he was then constable:

"William Shurtlife and John Caruer were admitted freemen att this Court."

He probably removed to Marshfield about this time, as his name cannot be found any later in any of the records of the town of Plymouth. From an instrument recorded with the Old Colony deeds, it is ascertained that he sold meadow land in Plymouth to Gabriel Fallowell on Mar. 27, 1660, at which time he was called "of Marshfield." Perhaps he was then preparing to change his place of residence, or had actually done so since the fifteenth of the previous September, when he certainly was a townsman and office-holder in Plymouth. Nor can it be ascertained that he ever became a member of the church at Plymouth, although it is known that he was a member of some church according to statute requisition. Unfortunately the church records of Marshfield are not in a condition to show where he was in church-fellowship in that town. His name is not on any list of freemen which has been preserved among the Plymouth Colonial Records, owing to the fact that none of them were taken during the time which elapsed between his admission and death. Nevertheless, on a list of the freemen of the town of Marshfield, taken for town purposes in 1664 and preserved in the records of that town, his name occurs with thirty-one others.

While in Plymouth he resided on his estate at Strawberry Hill near the Reed Pond and not far from the present bounds of Kingston, after which he dwelt in the easterly part of Marshfield in the neighborhood of White's Ferry, near the mouth of the North River, where his dwelling house was destroyed by fire in the early part of the year 1666; and on this account he was sojourning at the house of his near neighbor, John Phillips,* at the time of the occurrence of the lightning* which caused his death. From the several accounts of Mr. Shurtleff's death that have been preserved, together with facts which have been transmitted from generation to generation in the family, and other data obtained from authentic sources, the following particulars regarding this event have been deduced:

At the time of his decease Mr. Shurtleff was in possession of his estate in Marshfield, having bought it a short time previous of Thomas Tilden. The deed, which was dated on July 6, 1670, four years after his decease, states that thirty-three pounds sterling had been formerly paid for the same by "William Shirtleiffe" of Marshfield, then deceased. The "house and lands" had formerly belonged to Robert Waterman and had been bought by him of the administrator on the estate of Thomas Howell, deceased. Besides his land at Strawberry Hill and at Marshfield, he had several grants from the Court of Assistants. On June 3, 1662, he and twenty-three others had an allotment of land in the following words: "It was further graunted by this court that the abouesaid servants and ancient freemen shall haue libertie in case they can not procure Saconett necke" (now Little Compton) "according to the graunt To Looke out some other place vndisposed of for theire accommodation." At the court held on June 5, 1666, less than three weeks before his decease, he had another grant of land in the following words: "The court haue graunted that William Shirtliffe shalbee accommodated with land amongst the servants neare vnto the Bay line." He also had land at "Punckateesett," now called Tiverton; and after his decease his heirs received in his right a conveyance of land at Saugkonnet from the Indians.

Mrs. Shurtleff was buried with her third husband in the churchyard at Swansea, now known as the Tyler Point Cemetery, which was in the southern extreme of Meadow Neck and now known as Howland Meadow in Barrington, R.I. This portion was set off from Swansea in 1718. Her gravestone can still be seen, but its inscription is entirely obliterated. Mr. Shurtleff was buried in Marshfield, and although most diligent search has been made for his gravestone, not a vestige of it has been found. If one had been placed there to mark his grave, it today would probably be but crumbled pieces of stone, and many such are to be found in the old burying-ground. In this same graveyard Daniel Webster was laid away, and near his lot there was erected a monument in memory of the early settlers of Green Harbor (Marshfield). The names of "William Shirtley and wife Elizabeth" can be seen on this memorial.

The descendants of Mr. Shurtleff lived during the first three generations mostly in what now comprises Plymouth County, chiefly in Plymouth and that part of Plympton which now forms Carver. A little more than a century ago one parish of the town of Plympton contained more legal voters of the name of Shurtleff than can now be found within the limits of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and perhaps in the United States. Branches of the family can be found permanently settled in various parts of Massachusetts, nearly every other State in the Union and even in parts of Canada.

William Shurtleff had but three children, of whom the youngest was posthumously born soon after the death of the father.

Children, b. in Plymouth, Mass., except 3d:

2 William, b. 1657.

– Thomas, b. abt. 1659; d., probably in Plympton, Mass., abt. 1733, s.p.; m. in Plympton, May 21, 1713, Sarah Kimball. She might have been the Sarah Shurtleff who m. Apr. 7, 1746, Joshua Benson of Middleboro. On Mar. 1, 1680, he was a witness to Richard Garrett's signature, at which time he probably was twenty-one years of age. He was a constable in the western precinct of Plymouth (now the town of Plympton) in 1703, and engaged in collecting the precinct tax. On Apr. 13, 1691, he bought of the town of Plymouth for 20 shillings 10 acres of land joining that laid out to John Bradford, and on Apr. 27, 1691, bought of John Bradford for £10 land on little brook which runs out of Jones River Meadow; and on same day bought of Stephen Bryant. for £4 land in the same meadow. On May 27, 1709, he sold to Benj. Soule for £8 a 60-acre lot of land at Hemlock Islands on south side of Herring Brook, near mouth of Monponsett Pond in Plympton, and also one share of cedar swamp, being one-third part of the 39th lot joining the 60-acre lot. On Sept. 17, 1712, he sold to John Drew and his son Lemuel for 40 shillings a whole share in the 5th lot of the last division of the town's commons. At a town meeting held by the town of Plympton, Mar. 2, 1712 13, he was chosen to serve on the jury of trials at the inferior court. On Apr. 9, 1713, he exchanged with Benj. Eaton all his land he bought of John Bradford except five acres, also the piece he bought of Stephen Bryant and the 30-acre lot granted Feb. 9, 1701 2, by the town and the 20-acre lot laid out May 11, 1705, for a farm of 40 acres in Plympton with the buildings thereon. Nov. 28, 1718, a private way was laid out by the selectmen of Plympton for him to pass through land of Benj. Eaton to his wood lot. Nov. 22, 1719, he sold to Caleb Loring a five-acre lot in Plympton for £8, 10s. and privilege of wood from five acres of land at Turkey swamp. On Dec. 3, 1714, he mortgaged his 40-acre lot for £100, in which his wife Sarah joined, and on May 22, 1717, paid it up with interest (£102, 1s. 8p.). Feb. 13, 1716, he again mortgaged his homestead of 40 acres for £150, and on May 21, 1720, paid it all with interest: on the same day he again mortgaged it for £150, and then on Mar. 6, 1722 3, paid interest and all. Mar. 5, 1722 3, he sold this 40-acre homestead for £220 to Haviland Torrey, and Sept. 2, 1724, bought back from him for £30 two pieces of land on this homestead, each piece containing six acres. Apr. 13, 1726, he gave a quitclaim deed to Job Prince to rectify a mistake in the deed which he got from Benj. Eaton. His home was in the northern part of Plympton near the Kingston line, a little north of the road leading from Kingston to Halifax, and about 1730 was sold to Lieut. Josiah Cushman, who tore down the house and built a new one, but not on the same site. He later lived in a house, long since torn down, near the line between Plympton and Carver, but not on the highway. In a petition of the inhabitants of the south part of Plympton, dated Nov. 25, 1731, to be set off, either as a town or a precinct, they requested that the dividing line begin at the head of Annasnappet Brook and run southwesterly, so as to include the house of Thomas Shurtleff.

Thomas Clarke d. in Plymouth, Mar. 24, 1697, aged 98 yrs. (see under No. 1). Barnabas Lothrop, bapt. in Scituate, Mass., June 6, 1636; d. Oct. 26, 1715; son of Rev. John and second wife, Ann. John Lothrop, M.A., curate of Egerton, County Kent, bapt. in Etton, East Riding of Yorkshire, Eng., Dec. 20, 1584; buried first wife in Apr. or May, 1634; came to Boston in the Griffin (arriving Sept. 18, 1634); settled first at Scituate, Sept. 27, 1634, as the first pastor of that place and afterwards at Barnstable in Oct., 1639; d. in Barnstable, Nov. 8, 1653; son of Thomas and second wife, Mary, who was buried in Etton, Jan. 6, 1588. Thomas Lowthrope of Cherry Burton, d. 1606; son of Robert and Ellen, who d. 1572. Robert's will was dated at North Burton (Sheriburton), July 16, 1558, proved at York, Oct. 20, 1558; he was son of John Lowthrope of Cherry Burton.

Capt. William was the first native born Shurtleff; was commonly spoken of by his kinsmen as "William the surveyor," and was "the eldest son and heir apparent," as he was styled in ancient documents. He passed the chief part of his life in Plymouth, where he held substantial offices of honor, as well as of labor and trust, within the gift of his fellow townsmen. He was for many years one of the selectmen of the town (1662, '93, '94, '98, '99, 1700, '01 and '05), captain of a military company, delegate to the Provincial Assembly in 1694 and town treasurer from 1695 to 1704. On June 4, 1707, a portion of the town of Plymouth was set off and incorporated by the name of Plympton, and William Shurtleff was chosen, on Mar. 1, 1707 8, for their first town clerk and served till Mar. 2, 1710 11. It is to him we are indebted for the early records of that town kept in a most faithful manner. He was the first captain of their military company at Plympton. Tradition says that he was a very wealthy man for the time in which he lived, was a distinguished surveyor, owned land all over the colony, built the first wharf in Plymouth, erected the first warehouse and settled the dispute between Sandwich and Plymouth. During the latter part of his life he lived in that part of Plympton which was afterwards set off and incorporated on June 9, 1790, as the town of Carver. His home was near the place where "Esq. Francis Shurtleff" died, although the site is now unknown, but is in the neighborhood called Quittacus on the farm of the late Jacob Holmes. Here his wife died and he buried her at North Carver (then Plympton) in the old graveyard formerly known by the name of Lakenham. The land for this burying-ground was given by Benoni Shaw, whose daughter, Rebecca (in April, 1718), was the first person buried in it. Here also are buried William's son, Barnabas Shurtleff, and wife Jemima, their son Francis and grandson Ansel. In this same lot are buried William's brother Abiel and wife Lydia, their son Benjamin and wives Hannah and Susanna, their grandson Benjamin and wife Abigail, with his son Stephen and two of his grandchildren, Ann and Eliza. William Shurtleff died while visiting Plymouth and was buried there with the Pilgrim Forefathers on Burial Hill, where a memorial stone is still to be seen. That it may better weather the ravages of time this stone has been capped with zinc at the expense of Mrs. Frances Louisa Evans of Brooklyn, N.Y. This lot is on the brow of the hill, overlooks Plymouth Harbor, and in it are buried Thankful and Lydia Shurtleff, grandchildren of William, and Capt. Jabez Shurtleff, William's son. Faith, the wife of Abiel's son James, and their daughter Mary are likewise buried there. Doubtless others are buried in both of these lots, but no stones mark their graves.

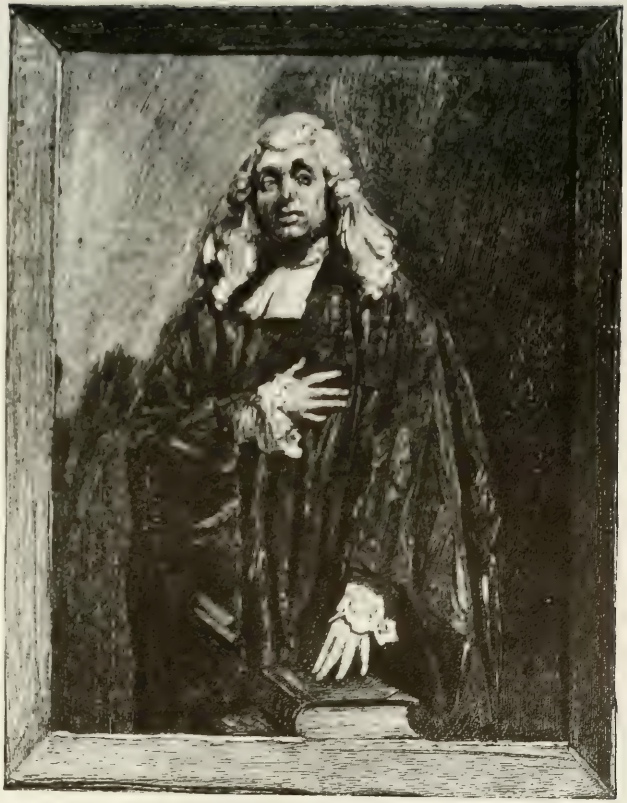
— William, b. Apr. 4, 1689; d. in Portsmouth, N.H., May 9, 1747, s.p.; m. in Newcastle, N.H., June 11, 1713, Mary Atkinson, b. in Newcastle, June 6, 1695; dau. of Theodore and Mary. Theodore Atkinson, b. Oct. 3, 1669; d. May 17, 1719. Rev. William Shurtleff was graduated at Harvard College in 1707. On Feb. 21, 1732, he was chosen by the lower parish at Portsmouth to succeed the Rev. John Emerson, deceased, and was the first pastor settled after the Old South Church was erected there. On Oct. 1, 1751, "Madam Shurtleff" was voted, with other parishioners, to have a pair of gloves for the funeral of Rev. Job Strong, the successor to Mr. Shurtleff. The remains of William Shurtleff were deposited in a grave under the communion table, and those of Mr. Strong were placed close beside them. On Sept. 13, 1863, these remains were exhumed, placed in appropriate boxes, and buried in Auburn Cemetery, where a suitable monument is now erected. From a worldly standpoint Mrs. Shurtleff was a fine match for this clergyman; her beauty—the eagle-beaked kind; her wealth—a share of the family plate; her birth—a sister to the Hon. Theodore Atkinson. But if he had cast his eyes lower he might have found more happiness. The spirit of Xantippe seems to have taken possession of her immediately after marriage, and the freakish disrespect with which she used her husband was a heavy cross to bear at a time in New England when clerical dignity was at its highest sensitive point. Her devices for torturing this man were inexhaustible. Now she lets his Sabbath ruffs go unstarched; now she scandalizes him by some unseemly and frivolous color in her attire;



Rev. William Shurtleff (3d) of Portsmouth, N. H., 1689-1747, and His Wife Mary, 1695 —

now she leaves him to cook his own dinner at the kitchen coals; and now she locks him in his study, whither he has retired for a moment of prayer, previous to setting forth to perform the morning service. The congregation has assembled; the sexton has tolled the bell twice as long as is the custom, and is beginning a third carillon, full of wonder that his Reverence does not appear; and there sits Mrs. Shurtleff in the family pew with a face as complacent as that of the cat that has eaten the canary. Presently the deacons appeal to her for information touching this good divine. She sweetly tells them that he was in his study when she left home. There he is found and released, begging the deacons to "give it an understanding but no tongue." On another occasion he entertains the deacons at his home and requests his wife to give them a light supper; soon she says it is ready, and then they find she has set the table with her best linen and plate and put a lighted candle at each place. On Sept. 27, 1760, Madam Shurtleff gave a silver tankard to the church for the use of the ministry for the time being.

__ One child was drowned in a well when young.

On June 3, 1690, William Shurtleff bought of Nathaniel Warren 50 acres of land, in Middleboro, with house and barn upon it; Mar. 22, 1692, he bought of William Basset a large tract of upland and meadow in Middleboro at a place called "Pachoagerd Neck"; Oct. 17, 1696, the town of Plymouth granted him (and Ephraim Cole, each) a piece of land 30 feet square on the seashore below the bank; Mar. 20, 1697, he bought of George Bonum marsh and cedar ground at the "High Pines;" May 19, 1701, he had "liberty to purchase 50 or 100 acres of land upon the town's commons for 2^{s} an acre at the westward of Barne's bridge at the south meadows." In October the town granted to him all the meadow or meadowish ground lying upon Sampson's Brook, on both sides thereof, between the meadow of Josiah Finney there and the meadow laid out to Hugh Cole, and all the common meadow between Hugh Cole's and the bridge above William Ellis's, for £18 in silver. On Dec. 8, it was ordered that the town clerk enter upon town records that "Lieut. William Shurtleff hath paid the sum of £18 for the said town's use that was due to sd town for the 100 acres of land sold to sd Shurtleff lying at the south meadows between Beaver dam brook and south meadows river on the north side of sd river, and for the meadow or meadowish ground lying upon Sampson's brook and the south meadows river." On Feb. 20, 1702, he bought of Joshua Ransom 30 acres of upland (granted by the town) and four acres of upland meadow at South Meadows; Feb. 15, 1702/3, he bought of William Ring 30 acres (granted by the town), lying at Jones River Pond neck; May 24, 1703, he "made a motion to the town to exchange some part of his meadow at the high pines so called with the town for the upland meadow at the south meadows belonging to the town there for the use of ministry upon sd motion the town made a choice of Capt. Warren and Nathl Morton for their agents or trustees to agree with sd Shurtleff as to an exchange of sd land and make report thereof to the town in order for the town's confirmation thereof and where as William Shurtleff hath passed a deed to sd agents of some part of his sd meadow according to his agreement with sd agents therefore at a town meeting held at Plymouth on the 15th December 1703 the town granted unto William Shurtleff abovesd both the upland and meadow land of sd south meadows that was belonging to the ministry and now exchange to him and his heirs and assigns forever." On Nov. 8, 1703, he bought of James Howland 30 acres (granted by the town); Dec. 11, 1704, the town granted to him (and Ephraim Cole) "liberty to wharf down below their land under Cole's hill, so called, down into the sea so far as may be convenient for them;" Mar. 4, 1707, he bought of John Watson three acres of upland meadow at Beaver Dam Brook; Apr. 15, 1713, he bought of John Doggett and Samuel Doggett 100 acres in Plympton; Dec. 26, 1713, he bought of Jabez Eddy 40 acres of land at Plympton with house and orchard; Mar. 15, 1714, he bought of Elkanah Cushman 11 acres at Sparrows Plain; Jan. 13, 1715, he bought of William Bassett and Ebenezer Lewis some land at Rochester; Dec. 29, 1715, he bought of Ichabod King upland meadow at the South Meadows; Jan. 29, 1716/17, he bought of Jabez Eddy 53 acres at Plympton; Sept. 22, 1721, he bought of Jonathan Washburn 50 acres at Plympton.

Several lots of land which he owned in Plymouth are described by Davis in his "Ancient Landmarks" as follows: "At a very early date all the land on the south side of Leyden Street, from the corner of Market Street to the westerly line of the lot on which the gambrel roof house with a brick end stands opposite the Universalist Church, was in the possession of James Cole. On Jan. 2, 1637, seven acres of land were granted to him by the court 'to belong to his dwelling-house,' and those acres probably included the Leyden Street land. Mr. Cole in 1688 sold to his son John all that part of the above land as far as the Baptist Church lot inclusive, and on Mar. 26, 1689, John Cole sold the same to William Shurtleff, who built the house on the corner not long since torn down. In 1698 Mr. Shurtleff sold the corner lot and house to Isaac Little and in 1707 sold to James Warren the lot adjoining this on which stands the hardware store of Mr. Weston. The next lot which, in the winter of 1620, was probably built on by William Brewster and at that time stood on the corner, was sold by Mr. Shurtleff in 1707 to John Watson. The lot next to this, on which the Baptist Church stands, was sold by Mr. Shurtleff in 1703 to Francis LeBaron, who before his death in the next year, built the old tavern-house which came into the possession of his son Lazarus. The corner lot above mentioned bordered on Market Street, and the lot on which the house stands owned by Mr. Drew was a part of this corner lot and was sold by Mr. Shurtleff in 1698 to Isaac Little as has already been said. The lot next to this, on which the store stands owned by Sarah Sherman is a part of the land sold to William Shurtleff by Mr. Cole in 1689, and the house now standing was built by Mr. Shurtleff and conveyed in 1729 to his son Nathaniel, who made it his residence. In 1749 he sold it to John Watson. The land next south of this lot just mentioned as far as the northerly line of the shop, formerly occupied by Mr. Eldridge, is the lot which William Shurtleff bought in 1687 of James Cole the year before he bought the larger tract of John Cole. Mr. Shurtleff soon after built a house on this lot and kept an inn, where the members of the Plymouth Church met during their difficulties with Mr. Cotton, their minister, and came to the determination to release him from his 'office bond' as pastor. In 1716 Mr. Shurtleff conveyed this estate to his son Jabez, who occupied it until he sold it in 1724."

William Shurtleff conveyed the easterly part of his estate in what is now Carver to his brother Abiel and the following is a copy of the deed:

3. ABIEL[2] SHURTLEFF (William[1]), b. in Marshfield, Mass., June (23-30), 1666; d. in Plympton, Mass., Oct. 28, 1732; m. in Plymouth, Mass., Jan. 14, 1695/6, Lydia Barnes, b. in Plymouth, July 4, 1674; d. in Plympton, Sept. 10, 1727; dau. of Jonathan and Elizabeth (Hedge), who were m. in Plymouth, Jan. 4, 1665/6. Elizabeth Hedge, b. in Yarmouth, Mass., May 21, 1647; d. in Plymouth, Dec. 15, 1731; dau. of Capt. William (d. 1670) and first wife. Jonathan Barnes, b. June 3, 1643; d. in Plymouth, Aug. 20, 1714; son of John and Mary (Plummer), who were m. Sept. 12, 1633. Mary d. in Plymouth, June 2, 1651, and her husband, John Barnes, d. 1671.

Abiel Shurtleff was born soon after the untimely death of his father and there was a considerable debate as to what his name should be. By some it was thought that he should be called after Boanerges (Children of Thunder), as mentioned in the New Testament; but the difficulty of converting the plural name into the singular number fortunately prevailed against the infliction of an appellation which was far from being euphonious. The scriptural name Abiel, which interpreted into English from the Hebrew, signifies "God, my father," was adopted as the most satisfactory, since it was sufficiently indicative of his posthumous birth. Mr. Shurtleff was a very noted "housewright," as was his father, and built "all the meeting houses in his time." He dwelt during the greater part of his life at Plymouth, living in the "Tim Goodwin" house and in the one next to it, which he also owned. Perhaps these were the two adjoining houses which were once one house owned by Mr. Shurtleff and in which all of his children were born. He was a useful man in his town, holding various offices, and was one of the selectmen there in 1715, '16, '17, '18, '19 and 1720. Late in life he removed with his family to that part of Plympton which is now called Carver and built him a house, the cellar of which may still be seen in the "Old Will" field, about 110 rods from the house now standing on his old estate, but is nearly filled in with earth and looks like a mere depression in the ground. Near it is an apple tree which Mr. Shurtleff set out. The trunk of this tree is hollow with one side entirely gone, and is so covered with a sucker growth that at a distance it looks like a young, unpruned tree. His estate here consisted of some six hundred acres and was located between "Barne's Bridge" over the Weweantitt River, and Pope's Point. On one occasion his brother William came to spend the evening with him, leaving his horse in charge of a nephew, who turned him loose in the field. About 9 or 10 o'clock this nephew, Benjamin, when he went to catch the horse, found a wildcat in a trap which he had set for that purpose. Upon moving to Plympton Abiel Shurtleff gave his house in Plymouth to his son James and the "Tim Goodwin" house to his youngest son, Abiel. He was a paralytic for many years previous to his death, and when about fifty years of age had a shock of the palsy and kept his bed much of the time. After six years' residence in the new home he lost his wife, and he survived her but five years. This house was afterwards cut in two and one part moved away by his grandson, Daniel Vaughan, and the remainder was taken down by his son, David Shurtleff. As already said under No. 2, Abiel Shurtleff and wife were buried in the Lakenham graveyard.

22 Joseph, b. Jan. 22, 1715/16.
23 Abiel, b. Oct. 23, 1717.

Upon the death of the father in 1732, Joseph and Abiel, the two youngest children, appointed their cousin Barnabas Shurtleff to be their guardian.

In 1701 Abiel Shurtleff bought of Abraham Jackson 30 acres of upland and four acres of meadow at the South Meadows bounded by Pollipody Cove; May 21, 1702, he bought of Caleb Loring 10 acres of upland which was granted at a town meeting held at Plymouth, Feb. 9, 1663, to William Harlow, by virtue of his having meadow at lower South Meadows; June 15, 1703, he bought of Eleazer Ring four acres of meadow at Pollipody Cove at the South Meadows given him by his father, Andrew Ring; June 30, 1703, he bought of George Morton 10 acres of upland granted by virtue of his having meadow at the upper South Meadows, and 2½ acres of meadow adjoining the same; in 1704 he bought of Joseph and Daniel Pratt four acres of meadow at South Meadows; July 12, 1708, he bought of Jacob Tomson, Joseph Vaughan and Samuel Wood 40 acres in Plympton bounded by Beaver Dam Pond; Dec. 23, 1708, he bought of his brother William what has already been mentioned under No. 2; Feb. 12, 1708/9, he bought of Thomas Howland a lot of land in Plymouth; Mar. 31, 1709, he bought of Benajah Pratt 10 acres of upland at the South Meadows; June 28, 1709, he bought of William Ring 10 acres of upland at the South Meadows; May 14, 1716, he bought of Benajah Pratt his share, one-tenth part, of grant made by town of Plymouth of swamp land at a place in Plymptton called Swan Hole, and on the same day bought of Nathaniel Holmes 29 acres of land at the South Meadows; July 20, 1716, he bought of Samuel Savery 30 acres of land; Sept. 22, 1716, he bought of Daniel Pratt 58½ acres of land.

Several lots of land which he owned in Plymouth are described by Davis in his "Ancient Landmarks" as follows: "The first two lots on Main street, west side, covered by a block of two stores (recently burned), were formerly owned by the Bradfords. The land extending from that point to the southerly line of the Davis Hall lot, and westerly to School Street, as far back as the records reach, belonged to William and Joseph Bradford, sons of Gov. Bradford, and was sold by them in 1697 to Nathaniel Howland. On Aug. 20, 1697, he sold it to Abiel Shurtleff, there being one acre of land. The lot on which the building stands owned by Mr. Bailey was sold to Ephraim Cobb. The next lot, on which the building stands owned by Mr. Hall (deceased) was conveyed, like the preceding one, to Mr. Cobb. While in the possession of Abiel Shurtleff he built a house on it in which he lived. Mr. Cobb and Nathaniel Torrey also occupied the house after him and John Bartlett occupied it many years as an inn, bearing the name of 'The Bunch of Grapes.' The lot next to this, on which the house stands owned by Mr. Gooding and others, remained a vacant lot during its ownership by the Bradfords, Howland and Shurtleff, and after Abiel's death came into the possession of his son, James Shurtleff, who built the house which was the residence for many years of the late John Gooding. The next lot, on which the house stands owned by Miss Simmons, likewise came to James Shurtleff, who in 1749 sold it to his brother Joseph, who built the house now standing and occupied it as a residence. The next lot, on which the Old Colony National Bank building stands, came in the same way to Abiel Shurtleff and while in his possession Joshua Morse built, in 1717, the house which was torn down to make way for the bank building. The next lot to this, on which the Plymouth National Bank building stands, was sold by Mr. Shurtleff to Caleb Loring. The gore of land between Summer Street and Mill Lane was held by the town as common land until 1709, when it was granted to Abiel Shurtleff and James Barnaby on the condition that they and their assigns should keep Summer Street, then called Mill Street, in good repair and safe for travel. In 1716 they sold a part of the gore to Robert Bartlett. The remainder, 82½ feet in length, was sold by them in 1710 to Richard Cooper and Francis Adams, they agreeing to fulfill the conditions of the grant by keeping the street in front of the land purchased by them in repair. The estate known in later years as Hayward's orchard, formerly included a part of the ministerial land and land granted by the town in 1711 and 1714 to John Wood and Abiel Shurtleff. He once owned land on Watson's Hill lying south of a line drawn through Jefferson Street. Between that line and the northerly line of the estate of De Forest Shaw, on that part of Pleasant Street once called Jordan Street, lies a tract of land extending westerly to the pond and measuring nine acres. The easterly part of this tract, bounding on Training Green on the east and reaching the westerly line of the house lots on Mayflower Street, is the allotment of six acres made to Stephen Hopkins in the first division of lands in 1623. The westerly part is the allotment of three acres made to Samuel Fuller, Jr., in the same division. In 1634 Mr. Fuller sold his land to Josiah Cook, and in 1638 Mr. Hopkins also sold his to Mr. Cook, who in 1645 sold these nine acres of land to Giles Rickard. On Mar. 22, 1698/9, Giles Rickard of a later generation sold these nine acres to Abiel Shurtleff, and stated in his deed that they were given to him by his grandfather. In 1713 Mr. Shurtleff sold this land to William Barnes."

Before his death Mr. Shurtleff gave parts of his estate to his sons David, Benjamin and William as follows:

Benoni Lucas, b. in Plymouth, Oct. 30, 1659; d. in Plympton, Feb. 28, 1729/30; son of Thomas, who came to Plymouth from the west of England and was killed in King Philip's War.

When the twins were ten years old Mr. Shurtleff moved with his family to Hebron, Conn., thence to Lebanon and in 1748 to Bolton and subsequently to other towns in that vicinity. On Sept. 19, 1738, he lived in what is now Carver and with his brothers, Barnabas, Ichabod and Samuel, and three sisters, Susanna, Sarah and Abigail, signed an agreement on the bounds with George Barrow, they owning the 20th lot and he the 21st. Feb. 21, 1748, Mr. Shurtleff, then of Lebanon, Conn., bought a farm of 70 acres from Thomas French of Bolton, Conn. Nov. 4, 1749, he bought land of Benjamin Smith of Bolton, the deed being witnessed by his sons, William and Lothrop. Mar. 29, 1750, he bought a piece of land in Hartford, Conn., adjoining the Bolton lines, and sells the same on Sept. 1, 1751, to his son William, then in Bolton, who sells the same to Joseph Kingsbury. Apr. 17, 1754, he bought another piece of land of Elijah Hammond. The will of John Shurtleff of Windsor, Conn., gives his whole estate to his wife Sarah, "she to pay to the three children of my daughter Susanna deceased £5 old tenor each.—to my son William Shurtleff £50.—to my son Benoni £10.—to my son Lothrop Shurtleff £5.—to my son Amos £150.—to my daughter Luce Crane £50.—to my daughter Mary £100.—Executrix wife Sarah." Will dated June 9, 1756, proved Mar. 26, 1757, probated Apr. 5, 1757. The executrix refused to serve and the court appointed Lothrop Shurtleff of Windsor, Conn., administrator. (Hartford Probate Records, Vol. 17, page 332.)

Ichabod Shurtleff in 1727 8 sells two-fifths of four acres of land to his brother Barnabas and again sells him 6¼ acres near the house he (Barnabas) lives in. In 1741 he sells the "ministers meadow" to Josiah Cushman, it being a "gift of my Honored Father William Shurtleff." May 17, 1742, he, then living in Plympton, sells to his brother Barnabas land adjoining the estate of Barnabas, which was given by his father; deed signed by Ichabod and wife Hannah. He was a very pious man, was often called upon to consult with the church officers respecting disturbances, irregularities of members or other church business, was able in prayer, prudent in council and much relied upon by all who sought his advice. He gave his son Lemuel a deed of all his property convenanting to support him and wife while they lived. They lived with him for a time, but the son, feeling that the property was now all his own and the prospects of the parents good for a green old age, sold out and went to New Hampshire or Vermont and left the burden of the parents' support on his older brother, Jonathan's, hands. Jonathan at this time was living on a farm of his own at North Bolton, Conn. He finally sold this farm and received his pay in continental money, which immediately proved worthless; this broke him completely down. He then moved to Eastbury, a part of Glastonbury, and bought 30 acres of land on June 6, 1780. His next move was to Montgomery, Mass., in 1789, where he bought 50 acres of land for £40.

He was a man of piety and strict morality, held the most honorable offices in his town and was considered a man "of some information" and a leader in public affairs. He lived in what is now Carver on the old estate, which he inherited from his father, to which he largely added from time to time; and built a house on this farm in which all of his children were born and in which he himself died. He was largely interested in iron works and with Bartlett Murdock in 1757 founded and superintended the construction of the old Charlotte Furnace on Sampson's Pond in Plympton, now South Carver, of which he was clerk and treasurer and one of the principal owners. He was a feeble man but of excellent character and rare executive ability and when sixty-six years of age had a shock of palsy. He was an intimate friend of Dr. Thatcher of Plymouth, who attended him in his last illness. He had an Indian servant named Joshua Pockanet to whom he gave a tract of land where he pitched his wigwam. This field still bears the name of Pockanet and is a part of the old farm which Mr. Shurtleff gave by deed before his death, to his only son, Benjamin, reserving the income during life and keeping the deed in his own possession. He gave his personal property to his two daughters, Hannah and Susanna, Ruth having died three years before.

The Hebrew name Susanna means Lily. 1st, Susanna Ring came to Plymouth with a widowed mother and married Thomas Clarke; 2d, her daughter Susanna married Barnabas Lothrop; 3d, her daughter Susanna married William Shurtleff; 4th, her daughter Susanna married Josiah Cushman; 5th, her daughter Susanna married Benjamin Shurtleff and her daughter (6th) Susanna Shurtleff ended the line, and the following account of her was written by Benjamin Shurtleff of Napa, Cal., a grandson of her only brother:

"Aunt Susie, as she was called in her advanced years, was a noted person throughout a locality much broader than the town in which she was born, and where living to extreme old age, she died. She was a native of that part of the town of Plympton that is now Carver and was born in the last year before the change from the old style calendar. She was a favorite, bright, interesting child, who at maturity became a young lady of charming beauty, with the most agreeable social and intellectual qualities; but in the morning of her glory a dire calamity befell her. A change came over the young woman as silent as the midnight thief, more cruel than the grave. She became extremely excitable, restless, wakeful and eccentric. There was mental aberration, and she betrayed permanent delusions during all the rest of her life, but never having been dangerous at large, she was never restrained of her liberty. Her delusions were harmless. She believed she was the sole owner of the Shurtleff homestead, with all the live stock, farming utensils and appurtenances thereon. When the proprietor, Mr. Lot Shurtleff, killed an animal for family use there was no complaint made, but when he sold a pair of oxen, a cow or a few head of sheep, and they were driven away then he had to take such a lecture as only Aunt Susie could deliver. When alone, she talked to herself almost incessantly in a whisper, but sometimes in a natural tone of voice. She was most happy in the evening sitting in the kitchen at the right-hand corner of the rude, capacious, old-fashioned fireplace, and in front of her own cupboard, smoking her clay pipe filled with tobacco she had raised, cured and prepared herself. She would smoke several minutes; then withdraw the pipe from her mouth, talk rapidly and earnestly to herself (doubtless repeating the thoughts that had come into her mind while smoking), then she would replace the pipe in her mouth and smoke again. It was at this chimney-corner that she ate her meals, never sitting at the table with the rest of the family, but, with rare exceptions, eating at the same time. Her table was a neat, clean, pine board, about sixteen by twenty inches in size, placed on the floor between herself and the cupboard. Her chair was very low and made of maple; the seat was made of meadow flag, which she skillfully constructed and replaced whenever required. It was called Aunt Susie's chair, which no one else ever pretended to use. She would occasionally sit for a few moments in other chairs, but there were two chairs in the house she would never use. They formerly belonged to a poor, unfortunate homicide, who became a life inmate of the Worcester Insane Asylum. More than once, when a bad boy, having seen her rise from her seat, only to sit down again in a moment without turning or looking around, I silently drew her chair away, and slipped one of the offensive chairs back in its place. This was always detected in an instant when she resumed the seat and jumping up she would settle me with a keen, sharp reprimand just such as I deserved.

"The ancient wooden clock that occupied the southeast corner of the parlor, was also purchased with the odious chairs. All were bought at a public auction, a mode of selling property, which seventy years ago was generally called in the New England states a vendue. Aunt Susie never entered the parlor to learn the time from the clock, and when the faithful old monitor proclaimed aloud the hour of the day, she never even greeted it with an attentive listening ear.

"She took much exercise, which gave her a good appetite. Northwest from the house, down by the corner of the hummock meadow, she had a garden, perhaps ten by twelve feet in size. Here she cultivated flowers and herbs. It was called Aunt Susie's garden. There was a spring close to the fence, from which in dry weather she watered the plants, and she carried dressing from the barn to the garden and kept it well fertilized. She also had a tobacco patch, a few rods west of the barn on the north side of the road, where she raised all the weed needed for her own use, which consisted of smoking only. Her diet was simple and plain, always taking milk for supper, eating it was a pewter spoon from a wooden bowl. In the summer her supper was brown bread (rye and Indian) and milk with a dry salt herring which she cooked herself by roasting in hot ashes. In the winter her supper was Indian meal mush and milk. She also delighted to eat the large blue swamp huckleberries in milk, and she enjoyed going alone and picking them herself, often bringing home more than the family could use. Instead of picking them in a tin pail or a common basket, she used a birchen, which was a round, narrow, deep basket made entirely of birch bark.

"She used to card wool into rolls and then spun it into yarn. My earliest recollection of Aunt Susie is, when I was a little boy I climbed to the head of the stairs to see her spin, and to listen to the monotonous sound of the spinning wheel. At that time Massachusetts was chiefly an agricultural and commercial state, and the great manufacturing city of Lowell had not been founded.

"Aunt Susie slept upstairs over the west front room, the head of her bed being near the chimney. She believed in the existence of witches or evil spirits, and that they came to molest her in the night; but she had a perfectly satisfactory way of repelling them, which was to scrape the chimney occasionally with an iron rod or bar. She always kept one or more of these implements concealed in or near her bed, one of which I remember to have been an old cast-iron skillet handle, bright at the large end from friction against the chimney. The old brick chimney still shows the defacement and wear from the scraping of the witch-repelling iron bar. She disliked stormy weather, and firmly believed that the crowing of the rooster standing on the fence foretold a rain. In that position the notes of 'the cock's shrill clarion' were often abruptly silenced as Aunt Susie shouted aloud and hurled a chip of wood or some other missile and vanquished the proud bird. In an unpleasantness between the cat and the dog, like any other woman she always espoused the feline side of the conflict.

"At the age of seventy-four, a painful, unfortunate accident happened to Aunt Susie. As she was going downstairs late in the evening without a light, she made a misstep, fell and broke her thigh. Dr. Samuel Shaw, then an advanced student in medicine, who soon after graduated from Harvard in the class of 1826, rendered her faithful surgical service; but whenever the injury became painful, his patient would persistently loosen the bandage and splints that held the ends of the fractured bones in close apposition, thereby shortening the limb and making her lame the rest of her life.

"Susanna Shurtleff was deeply religious. She lived and moved in the fullness of a Christianity taught by devout parents in the days of her early childhood. Her footsteps were never turned by the flash of the meteor from the fixed star of a lifelong faith, nor did she ever search for a more pleasing creed in theology, but was as content with her religion as she was with the light of the sun or the air she breathed. She was an inflexible Congregationalist all her life, and when the minister of that denomination from North Carver held service at the Central meeting-house in the summer every third Sunday, she was seldom absent. She always went alone to church, a distance of one-half mile. She never occupied the pew with the family, in the main body of the church, but took a seat in the gallery, and listened attentively to everything the minister said, and if she forgot and whispered she detected and suppressed it in an instant. She was familiar with the contents of the Bible, but her reading of the Scriptures was mostly confined to the New Testament, to which she was sacredly devoted. She loved her father and mother in life with all her heart and cherished and honored their memory in death. She held her mother, whom she resembled in appearance, and the Cushman branch of the family almost divine. If she saw a child that pleased her, with Cushman blood in its veins, she would exclaim with joy, 'Black eyes, round face, rosy cheecks, Cushman sort, born to be good.' She believed in divine foreordination or election and thought that she knew the elect. It was these whom she called 'born to be good.' She held a long list in her mind of the 'born to be good,' but her first favorite was immaculate Miss Harriet Ellis, a granddaughter of her sister, Hannah Shurtleff, who married Joseph Ellis. Harriet Ellis became the wife of Hon. Jesse Murdock of Carver. She was sensitively loyal to her favorites and he who uttered one word of censure against her friend was met with a fierce aggressive attack. She was fluent in speech and quick in repartee. Woe unto him who provoked her wrath. She hurled sarcasm with electric speed and the accuracy of a Dewey gunner; yet she never held malice, never was sullen or disagreeable. When the tempest was over no cloud lingered to obscure the bright, mellow light of the sun. She was kind to children and was delighted to see them. When they came to the house she would get such fruit or food for them as she thought they would like and always gave them good advice. She used to tell the boys not to rob the birds' nests, particularly those of the robin redbreast, sparrow and the barn swallow, but she despised the crow as an arrant, corn-pulling thief that ought to be killed. I never forgot her kindness to me when I was a little boy. When I had a hard task in doing chores, if in her power she would help me. If she saw me doing anything improper to be done on Sunday she would say, 'Remember the Sabbath day and keep it holy.' I do not believe that she thought that I was 'born to be good,' but bearing the name of her father and her only brother wrought a means of salvation whereby I was brought within the sacred folds of the 'born to be good.' Her sympathy for suffering humanity everywhere was boundless. The howling of the fierce winter storm overwhelmed her with grief as she contemplated the peril of the unfortunate mariner. Amid the most destructive storms of the New England coast she would sit in her chimney-corner to a late hour of night anxious and fearful, and when a sudden gust of wind rising to the fury of a hurricane, making the strongly built old house tremble and quiver to its base, she would suppress the incessant whisper for a moment and exclaim in a mournful tone, 'Oh, the poor sailors! What will become of them?' There is a tradition that the struggle of the seven years' Revolutionary War gave intense anxiety and distress to Aunt Susie, that culminated in a degree of mental aberration. It is more than probable that the terrible disaster that befell the ill-fated armed brig, General Arnold, at Plymouth, December, 1778, in the darkest days of the Revolution, made a life-long impression upon the unfortunate young lady's mind, exciting fear and solicitude for the poor sailors in all subsequent disastrous storms. The General Arnold was lost in a trip from Boston down the coast, in one of the most severe storms known to the annals of New England, in attempting to reach safety in Plymouth harbor. The wind blew a fierce gale from the northeast, snow fell with fearful rapidity and the weather was intensely cold. The doomed ship entered the harbor, but never securely anchored. The officers and crew numbered 106 persons, 72 of whom were frozen to death on the wrecked vessel, and 60 of the victims were buried in the same grave at Plymouth burial hill.

"Aside from several harmless delusions Aunt Susie's mind was clear, strong and well poised. Persons of high renown have been afflicted with some special aberration of mind. Cowper was insane and narrowly escaped suicide. More than one of his poems that hold high rank in literature were written while suffering great depression and mental aberration. Napoleon Bonaparte, the wonder of the world and the commanding genius of Europe at the dawn of the last century, had hallucinations. Aunt Susie had great perservance and independence; she never was melancholy, disheartened or weary of life, but was one of those fortunate persons in whom

'Hope unyielding to despair
Springs forever fresh and fair.'

Her memory was good and mind strong even to the close of her long life, almost 92 years. She was ill but a few days and when she consented to leave the favorite spacious chamber that she had occupied ever since the house had been built and took a room downstairs, we all felt sad; it was not Aunt Susie. The imperial will was broken, and we all felt and knew the hour of dissolution had come. Aside from some difficulty in respiration, incident to her deadly disease, she passed away as calmly as the weary child falls asleep in the mother's arms. She died with capillary bronchitis—a fatal disease with very old people. The inevitable hour came just as the evening shade was passing over the close of 1842 many long years ago. Though on a December day, the sun shining bright, and the weather not unpleasantly cold, a great many people of all ages attended her funeral. Everybody liked and respected Aunt Susie. Neighbors and friends, far and near, with sad and sympathizing hearts, came to the house of mourning to do honor to her memory. After the funeral services had been concluded the relatives returned to the house, where the older persons engaged in an interesting conversation in reference to the life of their loved and revered friend. Her nephew, Hon. Benjamin Ellis, read a brief but comprehensive biography of Aunt Susie, which he had prepared before leaving his home, that received a hearty commendation from all present. Only a few persons survive who remember Aunt Susie and personally knew her, and they, too,

. . .'Are falling from us one by one
As fall the patriarchs of the forest trees.'

"It is not probable that any one of the number will survive another fifteen years. Yet dear, good Aunt Susie will live and not be forgotten. She will live by the enduring monument we erect to mark the spot where her ashes repose. The charms of tradition will keep her memory green through a long line of advancing years. She will live in the published genealogy of her family and, most of all, she will live in the history of the immortal Pilgrims and their descendants.

When fourteen years of age, Benoni, the twin, was put to work at the blacksmith trade in Windham, Conn. He afterwards went to Southboro and Barre, Mass., and several other places before going to Vermont. Nineteen thousand nine hundred acres of wild land, comprising the present town of Barre, Vt., was chartered on Nov. 6, 1780, to William Williams and 60 others, and to this tract of unbroken wilderness the name of Wildersburg was given. In 1788 John Goldsbury and Samuel Rogers with their families began the work of colonization, and from that time the little town prospered till Mar. 11, 1793, when they had their first town meeting. To this territory Mr. Shurtleff removed his family, but lived a little over the line in the town of Berlin. He was a sentinel in Capt. John Fay's company, Col. Josiah Brown's regiment; entered service, Sept. 15, 1755; served till Dec. 13, 1755; service, 12 weeks, 6 days; reported allowed 10 days' subsistence before marching and 12 days' travel from Albany to Southboro; on a return, made by Col. The following reminiscences of Mr. Shurtleff were written by his great-granddaughter, Olivia Holmes:

"When the first town meeting was held at Carver on July 5, 1790, Mr. Shurtleff was chosen as moderator. He was also the first town treasurer of Carver and their first representative to General Court. He was clerk of the Popes Point Furnace Company, but today we would probably call him an agent. This furnace ran only in the winter and then night and day; and during that season Mr. Shurtleff and wife lived in a house nearby, so they could board the men who were employed there. He was a justice of the peace (appointed Apr. 16, 1790), a deacon of the church, and a dentist; at least, he was in the habit of pulling teeth and usually carried instruments for that purpose in his pocket. Afflicted people sometimes met him at the meeting-house, sat down upon the steps and had the decayed member removed right there. It was an act of mercy, and quite proper for the Sabbath. When the Squire went to Boston to attend the General Court he rode horseback, and carried his linen in one end of his saddlebag and some provender to bait his horse on the way in the other end. Arrived at the city he put his horse out to pasture until such time as he might need him again. Once when he went to seek the animal, he was not to be found; thorough search did not discover him; so the Squire took his luggage over his shoulder and walked home to Carver. By aid of a connection who was supposed to deal with rogues, he recovered the horse, but the animal had been used rather hard. Mr. Shurtleff had several children and sometimes more than one wanted to ride at a time; then they used a pillion and rode double-jaded. In this manner he sometimes took his wife or daughters to Plymouth, shopping. He was indulgent to his children, and when one day his daughter (Olivia) expressed a liking for a certain piece of goods which she thought was too dear for her to purchase, he bought her a dress from it, although it was English calico and one dollar a yard. His wife's maiden name was Shaw and among her descendants are some tiny teaspoons marked M.S. in her honor; the younger members of this family ask whether the letters stand for Mary Shaw, Shurtleff or Savery. Mr. Shurtleff was interested in educational work and the school of his district was sometimes kept in his house in a bedroom. He named one of his children for the beautiful daughter of the 'Vicar of Wakefield.' His pastor, the Rev. Calvin Howland, suggested this to him and named one of his own children Sophia for the other one, but the Esquire had the first choice and called his Olivia."

For 34 years he officiated as deacon at the altar of the First Church of Christ in Plymouth "without blemish." His piety was without bigotry and his devotion without enthusiams; piety to God and benevolence to man, being with him the sole test of orthodoxy and discipleship. Of Mrs. Spooner, it was said at the time of her death: "In early years having professed her faith in the glorious gospel of the blessed God her life was a comment on her profession, displaying the virtues of industry, charity and discretion, and the graces of piety, humanity and resignation to the divine will, the sum of all religion. As the natural result of a life habituated to the exercise of benevolence and devotion, when the last solemn scene approached, she quietly resigned her soul into the hands of her merciful Creator, in humble hope of that eternal rest promised by the great Savior of man to his faithful disciples."

Gamaliel Bradford's company, Col. Thomas Doty's regiment; raised by the province of Massachusetts Bay for the reduction of Canada; enlisted May 2, 1758; reported discharged Nov. 1, 1758; served till Nov. 17, 1758; service, 7 mo., 4 days, 16 days for travel; was on a return of men in Col. Thomas Doty's regiment that deserted at Half Moon and who were brought back to their duty by Lieut. Benjamin Williams; deserters' billeting amount to be taken out of their wages; advised in council, Feb. 16, 1759, that the treasurer stop out of each deserter's wages 7*s*., which shall be paid to Lieut. Williams for his service. Mr. Shurtleff walked to Plymouth on "Forefather's Day," sat upon Pilgrim Rock and took a severe cold, which resulted in his death. The following is taken from a newspaper clipping of Mar. 18, 1826: "Died in Carver, Mass., on the 6th of January, Mr. Abiel Shurtleff, aged 93 years. So late as the 21st of December, this aged pilgrim walked to Plymouth, a distance of nine miles in four hours, where he passed several days,—remarking among other things, that he had reaped in his native fields eighty two summers,—where, in his youth, he had seen wigwams and aged sachems,—and that he had been a soldier in the campaigns, of the war of 1756, at Crown-Point. His posterity is very numerous—eight children, sixty-two grandchildren, a great number of the 4th, and several of the 5th generation survive. He was born March 11, 1733, a descendant from William Shurtleff, who was killed by lightning in Marshfield, 1666."

The following letter was written, Apr. 4, 1837, by her son to his cousin, Dr. Benjamin Shurtleff, of Boston:

"Dear Sir:—I will inform you that my mother is sick and she thinks it is her last sickness—she thinks she is very much as your father was—she has had Dr. Perkins to see her. She was taken with a cold about three weeks ago—and greatest difficulty with her she has no appetitie and short breath and seems to be filling up. She gets up every day and can walk from the bed to the fire but she of course grows weaker. She has her reason and can tell about old folks and old times as well as ever but we think she can not get along but a little while if she does not have an appetite. She says your father lived so six weeks. I think as she is the oldest person in town and Mr. Samuel Vaughan has lately died that she is discouraged but I tell her she may get over this and live to be one hundred. Mother is the great granddaughter of Wm. Shurtleff that was killed with lightning in Marshfield she is the fourth generation from him. I want you should write to me and inform me the year he was killed with lightning and the year he came from England. I thought you would be likely to know. I expect he came to this country some little time after the first settlement at Plymouth. Mother was 91 the 3d day of this month and perhaps there is not a person in the state say three weeks ago that can see hear and reason better than she could and she is not much infirmed although she is weak.

"Yours Respectfully

"Benjamin Ellis."

Benjamin Shurtleff (2d) of Carver, Mass., 1748-1821, and His Wife Abigail 1755-1826
Painted in 1813 by Ethan Allen Greenwood

Farm of Benjamin Shurtleff (2d) in Carver

Oct. 14, 1748; d. in Carver, Mass.; July 8, 1821 (Sunday, 11 a.m.); m. in Plympton, June 7, 1773, Abigail Atwood, b. in Plympton, Oct. 7, 1755; d. in Carver, Nov. 29, 1826 (8 p.m.); dau. of Nathaniel and Abigail (Shaw), who were m. in Plympton, Oct. 9, 1747. Abigail Shaw, b. in Plympton, 1712; d. in Plympton, Jan. 27, 1782; widow of Samuel Lucas, whom she m. in Plympton, Feb. 29, 1731; dau. of Benoni Shaw and Lydia (Waterman), b. 1676; d. in Plympton, July 25, 1757; dau. of John Waterman and Ann (Sturtevant), who were m. Dec. 7, 1665 (see under No. 21). Benoni Shaw, b. in Plymouth, Mass., 1672; d. in Plympton, Mar. 5, 1751; son of Jonathan and Phebe (Watson), who were m. Jan. 22, 1656/7 (see under No. 5) (Lieut.) Nathaniel Atwood, b. in Plymouth, Oct. 3, 1693; d. in Plympton, Jan. 20, 1767, son of Nathaniel and Mary (Morey), who were m. 1683 (see under No. 16). Mr. Shurtleff was born on the estate where his father and grandfather ended their days; and lived on the farm which he inherited from his father, adding to it, in his turn, fields and meadows. This farm consisted of the old homestead which the father inherited and other property which he bought at different times by deeds from Col. Isaac Lothrop, Jr., David Shurtleff, Widow Anna Barnes, David Hearsey, Eleazer Robbins, Elisha Lucas, Bonum Nye, Moses Barrows and James Shurtleff; also the "Beaver Dam Cedar Swamp," one-half share in the ninth great lot in the "Great Cedar Swamp" and all the "buildings, orchards and fencing." It is in the central portion of Carver, formerly the south precinct of Plympton, and is situated between Sampson's and Vaughan's ponds upon a small stream called Cove Brook, which passes in a southerly direction through it to the South Meadow River, so called, which forms its southern boundary. These rivulets are tributary to the Weweantitt River, which, after coursing between the towns of Carver and Middleboro and through Wareham, finds an outlet into Buzzard's Bay at Rochester. The farm itself is divided into various fields.

The "Uncle Will" place never had many fruit trees on it, but in the boyhood days of Benjamin Shurtleff of Napa, Cal., there were two pear trees that stood just west of the house on this place when Deacon Ebenezer Shurtleff owned it. They bore small, inferior fruit that were called button pears. There was also one in Ben's orchard that bore the same kind of fruit. It was still alive in 1853. All three of these trees looked very old and probably were all set out at the same time. The pear tree that stands back of the shed at the old residence is the same variety of pear and was planted from a shoot or sprout taken from the tree in the old orchard. There were several varieties of very nice wild grapes that grew upon the old homestead at a vine by the fence where the Benoni meadow joins the upland pasture; the fruit was most delicious. It had much of the aroma and flavor the Catawba has, was a little lighter colored and superior to it as a table grape. When Benjamin of Napa was a small boy "Uncle Lot" picked some of those grapes and sent them by him on his way to school, to Thomas Hammond, Esq., in his last illness. As he died in 1827, it must have been over 75 years ago. There was also a young vine in the woods a few rods south of the Quittacus road opposite to Col. Gideon Shurtleff's field that produced most excellent grapes. The fruit was very large, black and unsurpassed in flavor. Both of these varieties should have been secured for cultivation as a dessert fruit. Near the last named vine Capt. Gideon Shurtleff prospected and found good iron ore, but Lot Shurtleff, the owner of the land, refused permission to continue the enterprise. There were many plum-apple trees in the young orchard, as it was called, between the house and the stock yard field. These apples were the most delicious summer apples raised in that section of the state. They were so popular that Lot, with all his productive trees, never had enough to supply the Plymouth market. All these trees were propagated from one old parent tree that stood near the cornhouse field fence.

In the year 1800 "Uncle Nat," when he was 24 years old, mowed the cove meadow in half a day. Forty-one years later at the age of twenty "Ben of Napa" also mowed it in the same length of time. Long years ago before the invention of the mowing machine, it was almost as rare an accomplishment for a young man to mow, as it is now to excel in a game of baseball. Not far from the "great neck line," which divided Abiel's estate from his brother William's, stands a tree called the "family record tree," and upon it were cut many initials of the family. Although they are now invisible owing to the growth of the tree, many cuts can be seen; these were put there by various sportsmen and hunters traveling in that direction. In 1806 a destructive fire swept over the woodland on the southwestern section of the Shurtleff estate known as the neck. "Aunt Ruth" used to say that "Uncle Flavel" and Nat Shurtleff (not "Uncle Nat") were hunting together in the month of June when Flavel fired at a bird sitting on a tree. He soon discovered that the dry moss upon the tree had taken fire from the wad of his gun and was about to advance through the dense underbrush to extinguish the fire when Nat said that there was no use in putting it out as it would go out itself. Flavel returned, only to see in a little while the most destructive fire ever known in that section of the country. "Ben of Napa" remembers seeing the immense forest of dead pine trees far off in the desolate woods, the dead, dense forest trees of pitch pine everywhere piercing the skies, which looked in the distance like the ruins of an ancient city. Many of the dead trees were hauled home and used for firewood and Lot made fence posts from those that were not with pitch; such posts last longer than any other kind, resisting decay longer than the best cedar. "Aunt Ruth" also told about one of her older brothers (believed to have been Flavel), who went fishing in the river and, in order to cast his line farther into the stream, stepped out and stood with both feet upon what he thought was a dark rock or boulder, when suddenly he felt his foundation moving and, looking down, saw that he was standing on the back of an immense mud turtle. There is another story told about Samuel, who went down to the river one day to go in swimming, but had not been in the water very long when he was chased by a huge mud turtle. Flavel, who was near and heard him call, ran with his axe and killed the turtle just as it was about to bite his brother.

Benjamin Shurtleff also built a house on this farm, which is still standing by the brook, and in this house was born his youngest son, Milton. The other children were born in the house his father built and which was torn down when the present one was erected, but the cellar can still be seen. Later, when his son Lot owned the house, a splendid granite foundation was put under it about 1830 or 1831. The stone was quarried from a ledge on the south side of the "rock field" in the edge of the oak woods and it is believed that there is a hole or depression in the ground there yet. The stone masons who did the work were Abiel and Alvah, sons of David Shurtleff, from "France" in Middleboro. Abiel was the master workman and was paid $1.50 and Alvah $1.25 per day and board. They put the granite hearthstone in the kitchen at the same time. "Ben of Napa" was then about nine or ten years old and every few days he had to take the drills to Joe Sears, the blacksmith, who lived about a mile and a half away, and have them sharpened. They were made from the heaviest iron he ever saw and put in a strong canvas sack which he swung over his shoulder. In later years, while Lot Shurtleff owned the farm, a piece of land was set off from it and given for the purpose of erecting a church for the Baptist society. By the last of June of 1823 the timber was cut for the meeting-house, but nothing further was done til the following September. The church is today in good preservation and has a graveyard in the rear, where Lot and some of his relatives are buried. Benjamin Shurtleff gave during life $500, or an equivalent, to each of his children and sold the farm to his son Lot for $4,100, giving possession one year after date of deed, about nine months after his death, reserving his wife's right during life. The education of his son Ben amounted to his full share. To his wife he gave his personal property, which on her decease amounted to $1,100, that is, $100 to each child. Ben sent Lot an order to pay his portion to his sister Ruth. Lot always lived on the old farm, but finally sold it to his brother Samuel, who gave it to his only surviving son, Augustine, and he gave it to his sister's son, Dr. Carleton Francis of Brookline, the present owner. In 1902 the town of Carver voted to observe Old Home Day and a beautiful grove on the northeast corner of the Shurtleff farm was used for this purpose. These events have since been observed annually and have become very popular with the citizens and friends of Carver. In 1908 Dr. Benjamin Shurtleff, an eminent physician of Napa, Cal., who was reared upon this farm but removed to California in 1849, gave to the town of Carver more than six acres of this grove for a public park. The town at a legal meeting voted unanimously to accept the gift and passed resolutions of thanks and has since caused to be erected a massive granite memorial stone bearing the following inscription:

Benjamin Shurtleff was one of the selectmen of Carver in 1800,1801, and 1802. He was a private in Capt. Nathaniel Shaw's company, Col. James Warren's regiment, which marched on the alarm of Apr. 19, 1775, from Plympton to Marshfield; service, 2 days; also private, Capt.-Lieut. Francis Shurtleff's company, Col. Thomas Lothrop's regiment; marched Dec. 11, 1776, on an alarm to Bristol, R.I.; service, 14 days.

Mrs. Shurtleff was an exceptionally large woman and the majority of her children resembled her in that respect. It is said that she and her eight sons weighed a ton. Her weight was 275 pounds, Benjamin's 214, Nathaniel's 220, Barzillai's 240, Flavel's 210, Lot's 200, Charles's 180, Samuel's 245, and Milton's 230, making a total of 2,014 and an average of 223 7/9 pounds. She was broad in her views and much in advance of the time in which she lived. She always had her children's clothes darned and cleaned when Saturday night came and, considering the number of them and her household duties besides, it was no small task. When busy with home duties she was usually about the house with her sleeves rolled up above her elbows and sat down in a chair when cooking. An old gentleman says he thus remembers her well and always when he went to her home was rewarded with a piece of bread and molasses, as were many other boys. The alewives or herring, so called, were an important factor in the food supply of each family, and the legislature passed laws empowering towns to control the catching of these fish and their distribution. Each family received its share as it applied for them at the weir. Upon one of these occasions, while Mrs. Shurtleff was waiting her turn in line, a man jostled her aside and stepped in ahead of her. She would not allow such impudence, from the other sex, and seizing him by the coat collar and the seat of his trousers threw him into the brook.

Captain Tyler was graduated from Harvard College in 1771. He served as adjutant to his father-in-law, Gen. Putnam, in 1775 and in many campaigns. In 1777 he and 35 others obtained leave to form an independent matross company, to be commanded only by the commander-in-chief or by majors or brigadier-generals of the state of Connecticut. This company was ordered to rendezvous in Greenwich, in 1780, and did efficient work when New London and Rhode Island were threatened. He was captain of artillery in 1778. When the town of Brooklyn was organized, June 26, 1786, he was one of the selectmen. He was among the heaviest of the taxpayers, and served on the committee for the first grammar school. By 1795 he had a fine farm under cultivation. He engaged extensively in business, receiving and discharging large quantities of produce. He advertised in The Norwich Packet for "500 bushels of Flax seed for which he will pay in rock salt, West India or European goods at the lowest advance." He also offers highest prices for good butter and cheese and requires large quantities of pork. In 1799 he reports in The Windham Herald, that he "will pay cash for 3000 or 4000 weight of good tallow; also good pork; about 20 fat oxen; 1000 weight of clover seed; 500 bushels of barley for which a generous price will be given." In the church struggle of 1816, "Old Captain Tyler" held up the orthodox banner and was supported by the majority of the church. His will was dated Apr. 24, 1832.

Edward Southworth, b. probably 1590; d. in England abt. 1621; was a silk worker in Leyden; son of Thomas and Rosamond, the dau. of William Lister of Thornton and Bridget (Pigot) of Midhope. Dr. Benjamin Shurtleff passed his childhood and early youth upon the farm of his ancestors and went for a short time to the schools of the town and then to a school in Plymouth. By a course of 48 weeks' study under several teachers, he entered, three weeks in advance, the sophomore class at Brown University, where he was graduated in 1796 with the reputation of a good scholar. This class was distinguished for its talent, numbering such men as Tristain Burgess of Rhode Island and Gov. D.R. Williams of North Carolina. After his graduation he taught school for a time in Plymouth, but soon began the study of the profession to which he devoted his life. From May, 1797, to Dec. 22, 1798, he was at Plymouth pursuing his medical studies under the direction of Dr. James Thacher and Nathan Hayward. Feb. 5, 1799, he became surgeon's mate in the U.S. Navy and set sail for the West Indies in the U.S. ship Merrimack in company with Dr. Nathaniel Bradstreet as surgeon. The next nine months were spent in cruising among the islands and in the Gulf of Mexico, and on Dec. 10, 1799, his ship arrived at Boston from Havana. On the 23d of the same month he was appointed surgeon upon the resignation of Dr. Bradstreet and soon returned to the West Indies, and continued in the service till Apr. 30, 1801, when he was honorably discharged under the peace establishment act of Mar. 3, 1801. The next year he studied with Dr. John Warren and attended lectures at the Harvard Medical School, where he received the degree of Bachelor of Medicine in 1802, and the same year received the degree of A.M. at Brown and Harvard Universities and in 1810 received his degree of M.D. at Harvard. He began active practice in Boston as a physician and for a few years lived on Scott's Court near Union St., till the winter of 1810, afterwards on Hanover St. till 1831 on the site of the Kast building, and still later at 134 (now 161) Tremont St., opposite the Common. When he was about 30 years old his health was delicate and it was feared that he would die of consumption; but he went back for a while to his father's farm, lived on a milk diet and fully recovered. In his profession he was eminently successful and his practice was for many years quite as extensive as that of any other physician in Boston. He was distinguished by great natural sagacity, much good humor and excellent judgment. When about 60 he began to seek rest, and a few years later had almost retired from active practice. When he first went to housekeeping, he lived in two rooms, using the bed-room for his office, and upon beginning the practice of medicine he would get up early in the morning and drive his horse "through town" as fast as he could go. He would stop for no one; and if anyone hailed him he would cry out, "I haven't time to stop now." This he thought would give people an idea that he already had a large practice, and in this way he quickly built up for himself an extensive business. He became a great man who, by the force of his genius, made his life a grand success. In his day everyone in town knew him. His appearance was marked; he had a tall, powerful frame, slightly bowed in his later years, a noble head and face, with handsome and expressive features. Many of the older citizens remember him well, with his bandanna handkerchief about his chin as he drove through the streets visiting his patients. Many, too, remember his cheering smile and pleasant voice in the sickroom, and his kindly hand, equally ready to soothe pain or relieve misfortune. No one knew so many children as did he, nor was known by so many. They all liked him, and it was seldom that his chaise had not two or three of them in it when he drove out of town. He was cordial and strong in his friendship, and, like many warm-hearted men, quite decided in his aversion. He was a just man; exact, but by no means hard; liking and practising accuracy in affairs, but always charitable and generous. He was methodical, industrious, and successful, performing all the duties of life with fidelity and kindness, giving freely of his medical skill and worldly substance to the poor and distressed. He felt and manifested a lively interest in the benevolent institutions of his day, and contributed generously to their support. He founded by a handsome gift the college which bears his name in Upper Alton, Ill., and it is an enduring monument of his munificence and public spirit. In religion he was devout from habit and conviction from his youth; and was an earnest but not intolerant member of the Baptist Church. In politics he was always a staunch federalist. Practical and scientific husbandry deeply interested him and a large share of his attention was devoted to it as long as he lived. His farms at Winnisimmet and North Chelsea were models. He gave a great deal of thought and time to the improvement of the breed of cattle and sheep in this country, and was one of the earliest importers of Ayreshire stock. He had a strong taste for genealogical research and industriously gathered a large amount of information in regard to the ancestry of others as well as his own. It was he who began this genealogy the latter part of the 18th century, and he who also gathered so much about the early generations in a time when it was fresh in the minds of the old inhabitants of the town in which he passed his youth. His memory was wonderfully full and accurate, and his use of language in composition elegant and vigorous. When disease assailed him he was patient and submissive, and when called to part with dear and valued friends he exhibited a beautiful example of Christian submission. As the last hours of life were passing away and when all earthly supports were insupportable he calmly and confidingly trusted in the mercy of the Lord and Saviour. His work was finished and he who for many years resisted the approach and parried the attacks of the king of terrors as he came to others, had himself fallen in that war which knows no discharge. He d. at his home on Tremont St., alone in his room except for his nephew, a young man bearing his own name. He was suffering intensely, late in the night, when his son, Dr. Nathaniel, and Miss Priscilla Tillson, a niece of his wife, went down to the kitchen to prepare something for his relief; and he expired just as they were ascending the stairs for his assistance. His death was observed in the American Almanac for 1848; and at that time he was the oldest physician in Suffolk Co. and the oldest honorary graduate of Harvard University. His membership in the New England Historical Genealogical Society dates from Nov. 15, 1846. He and wife are buried in the family tomb at Mount Auburn in Cambridge; a tomb which he built and in which his wife was the first person placed.

In 1808 he directed his attention to studies preparatory to a collegiate course and was graduated at Brown University in 1814. While in college he was bapt. by Dr. Gano and received to the fellowship of the First Baptist Church in Providence. Soon after leaving college he repaired to Philadelphia to engage in Biblical studies under the instruction of Rev. Dr. Staughton of the Sansom St. Church. He was received to the church by letter Dec. 5, 1814, and immediately after preached there. Upon delivering his second sermon the church voted unanimously to give him a license as a minister of the gospel. Here he pursued his studies, preaching occasionally in Philadelphia, Blockley, Frankfort and Wilmington, and after several months returned to New England and preached at Providence, Boston, Windsor, Carver and other places till Sept., 1817, when he was, by the request of the Baptist Church in West Bridgewater, ordained to the work of the ministry. Here he continued three years and then passed a few months with the Baptist Church in Warren, R.I., where he bapt. in a few weeks 120 persons. He was pastor of a church at Pawtuxet, R.I., for several years, then went to Martha's Vineyard, North Kingston, R.I., East Randolph, and for six or seven years at Hanson, at which time health began to fail him. His last sickness, of about a fortnight, was attended with great suffering. He was the first to apprehend the danger, but the near approach of death had no terror for him. He gave directions where his body should be laid and how the funeral services should be conducted, all in the most cheerful tones as if making arrangements for a pleasant journey. And so, sitting in his chair, as he was obliged to do most of the time during his illness, without a struggle or a groan, he fell asleep. It was, indeed, a most lovely and satisfactory illustration of the sovereign power of Christian faith to sustain the soul under severe bodily suffering, and in the near prospect of death and separation from those he most tenderly loved.

Hannah Duston, dau. of Nathaniel and Tryphena (Haseltine). Nathaniel Duston, son of Nathaniel and Mary (Ayer). Nathaniel Duston, son of Thomas and Hannah (Emerson), who was b. in Haverhill, Mass., 1657, and in 1697 was captured by the Indians. After seeing her week-old babe killed, she was forced to march to the Indian camp near the present site of the city of Concord, N.H. Then learning that she and the other captives were to be killed on reaching their destination in Canada, she quietly arose in the night, and with the aid of her nurse, Mary Neff, and a young boy, killed ten of the sleeping Indians, and made her escape to the Merrimack River, where they unloosed a canoe and soon after rejoined her astonished family in Haverhill. Her brave act is recorded in history and her name occupies an honored position in the list of America's heroic women. She was the dau. of Michael Emerson and Hannah (Webster). Jonathan Carleton, son of Elijah and Rebekah (Webster), who were m. July 31, 1770. Elijah Carleton, b. Oct. 20, 1746; d. June 14, 1816; son of Ebenezer and Elizabeth (Saunders). John Carleton, b. in England, 1630; d. 1668; son of Edward and Eleanor (Denton), the dau. of Sir Thomas. Edward Carleton settled in Rowley, Mass., 1638, but returned to England previous to 1656. Dr. Shurtleff was born and bred in Carver on the old farm which he afterwards purchased of his brother Lot, but in early manhood went to Boston to study medicine with his eldest brother, Benjamin. In 1815 he began the practice of his profession in that city, remaining there till 1838, when he removed to Brookline, where he lived until his death. He was for a while assistant surgeon of the state militia, and was at one time vice-president of the state horticultural society, in which he always felt a deep interest. His house was opposite the head of Hanover St. in Scollay Sq., then known as Pemberton Hill, and his garden, filled with fruit trees and grape vines, extended back to where the new court house stands on Pemberton Sq. He and wife were connected with the Baptist Church in Boston, of which Dr. Baldwin was the pastor, but were afterwards members of the Swedenborgian Church, which stood in Phillips Place, opposite King's Chapel on Tremont St.

___ Roswell Morse, b. June 14, 1838; d. in New York, N.Y., 1915; m. in Collinsville, Conn., June 14, 1866; Clara Eugenia Halliday, b. in Auburn, N.Y., Nov. 14, 1846. No issue. In early life he showed remarkable aptitude for pictorial art, and many of his clever sketches of men and things about his native town are well remembered. He first studied in the Lowell Institute, Boston, and later for a short time at the National Academy of Design, N.Y., and became a noted and delightful illustrator. For several years he was engaged in the illustration of periodicals and books, and numerous volumes of travel and adventure contain the work of his industrious pencil. In later years he gave his attention exclusively to oil painting. At the outbreak of the war in 1861, loyal to the call of patriotism, he laid aside the pencil for the sword, at the sacrifice of personal aspiration and ambition in art. He went to the front before the troops were mustered into service and was adjutant in the Ninety-ninth New York Volunteers. On July 19, 1861, he was severely wounded at Bethel, Va., while on picket duty, captured as prisoner of war, being the first Union officer taken, and languished in Libby prison, Richmond, Va., for eight months. After that he was exchanged and released on parole, consequently unable to bear arms thereafter. The United States flag which he carried when he was shot was the first Union flag captured in that war and was used to staunch his wounds. In Sept. 1885, it was returned to Col. John M. Sandidge, who was in command of the rebel forces at the time of Mr. Shurtleff's capture; the colonel writing, "doubtless as a relic of your service to your country your wife would prize it." The blood-stained relic is now evidence at the delightful studio on West 22nd St. His summer home was in the Keene Valley in the Adirondacks, where he spent the greater part of the year among his own primeval trees surrounded by the oldest mountains in the world. It is here that with daring spirit he has interpreted for us the grandeurs and mysteries of forest and mountain; the sylvan tongue of the trees; the rills; the river. As a painter of forest depths he is unequaled. One can go to the Metropolitan Museum and stand before his majestic canvas, "The Silent Woods," and, in the absolute hush, hear the still murmurs of life in the little rill sleeping in the foreground; feel the undercurrents of air refreshingly aromatic with pine and balsam; breathe the infant odors of brake fern and moist mosses, and, amidst the rhythmic play of the shadows and soft sparkle of distant sunshine, find themselves lost within its mysterious depths. Be it said the charm of his work is truth, lovingly spoken in colors that satisfy heart and mind — his touch was strong and delicately tender — he was not a cold copyist, but looked nature full in the face with love in his eyes — and when in the open air took up brush and palette to sing her praises in the harmonious colors that have made him famous, and that called forth from the Alpine Club of Paris congratulations that an American artist painted American scenery — the scenery of his own country — and this artist was R.M. Shurtleff.

267. SOPHIA[6] SHURTLEFF (Asahel[5]), b. in Chesterfield, N.H., May 17, 1792; d. in Fitchburg, Mass., Apr. 7, 1886; m. in Rindge, N.H., Sept. 25, 1823, Thomas Ingalls, b. in Rindge, Mar. 4, 1785; d. in Rindge, Dec. 27, 1863. 268. ROSWELL[6] SHURTLEFF (Asahel[5]), b. in Chesterfield, N.H., Aug. 15, 1797; d. in Hanover, N.H., June 6, 1856; m. in Sharon, Vt., Sept. 15, 1823, Clarissa Gleason, b. in Fort Covington, N.Y., Sept. 8, 1801; d. in Bellows Falls, Vt., Jan. 25, 1853; dau. of Seth and sister of Lydia (see No. 277). He entered mercantile life as a clerk in Brattleboro, Vt., then went into business on his own account at Bath, N.H., and later at Norwich, Vt., whence he removed in the winter of 1856-7 to Rochester, N.Y., when he engaged in banking. Overtaken by the financial storm of 1837, he closed his business and returned East in 1838, and after a brief sojourn in Worcester, Mass., took up his residence at Springfield, Mass., in Feb. of 1839. There he was engaged for several years in commission and real estate business. Attracted by the opportunity for profit offered at Bellows Falls, Vt., he built and equipped a hotel called the "Island House," which was burned the night of its completion, but at once rebuilded by him and is now standing on the island formed by the Connecticut River and the canal. It was intended that he should go to Dartmouth College, where his Uncle Roswell Shurtleff was professor, but his tastes were for trade. He was for a time colonel on the staff of the governor of Vermont, and died while on a visit to his cousin, Mrs. Joseph Emerson, at Hanover, N.H.

Her memory was remarkably retentive and very accurate in personal regards, as well as in the broader region of national affairs and religious movements. Her love for her grandchildren was very tender and she was devotedly loved by them. Her mental powers were scarcely impaired till the day before her death, when she was stricken with apoplexy and became unconscious, a condition from which she did not rally. As she lay in her coffin after nearly 91 years of earthly life, her forehead was still crowned with the luster of silver hair, and her face wore the most gentle and lifelike expression of exceeding peace.

In a letter to the compiler she said: "When I wrote you some of my reminiscences I had been thinking of the Eastern Township as I first remembered the country, so far from any commercial or manufacturing center; the remoteness and stillness of it make me lonely when I think of it. Only two or three years ago the township celebrated the centennial anniversary of their first settlement. Seventy years ago next summer the mail carrier went by twice a week; he always galloped his horse and blew a horn when near the house. He wore a sash wound about his person and carried a large green bag. Sixty-three years ago we lived in Charleston village, Hatley, and the great excitement, the one incident of their lives was the coming of the stage coach with four horses; and the flourish of that terrible whip as the 'Jehu' deposited the mail and then with such awful feats of turning, curving and prancing drew up before the one tavern in the full gaze of all the gaping, wondering loafers in the place with a sprinkling of anxious, earnest men, while we children looked through the gate on the other side of the street. I left Canada in 1843. A great change has come to country and people since I knew it. We had to travel 100 miles by stage to Burlington Vt., or to Montreal before we could take a boat on our way to Cayuga Co., N.Y. All the way by water from Burlington to Whitehall on Lake Champlain, steamboat by the northern canal to the junction at Troy, N.Y., from there to Weedsport on the Erie canal. I have been over this slow route twice and twice down the St. Lawrence and Lake Ontario. I am glad I have had all this old-fashioned experience. I am glad too that I have taught a district school and boarded around. I am sadly crippled and can only hold a pencil in the ends of my fingers. No one who sees my hand and arm will believe I can write a word and it looks awkward enough to me. I cannot read all the time and I am thankful for everything that makes me forget myself and my suffering."

Bits from the obituary notice: His death will be mourned in all the homes of this county where the just and kindly judge was known as the friend of the widow and orphan; and doubly so in the city which he loved, where all knew and respected him. He lived in the ideal world of books and poetry; his friendships were the most constant, and Nature appealed to him profoundly. Of no other man who could have died out of the circle of Springfield's men, old and young, would more people have said with depth of feeling, "He was 'mine own familiar friend.' " He lived in an atmosphere of friendliness and saw so much good in everyone and made them feel what he saw and felt. He was full of sentiment and gloried in it. Sometimes he said that sentiment—the warm and honest contact of soul with soul — was all that made life worth the living. And how great a power sentiment has been in the world, that rare preacher,

Frederick W. Robertson, told in one of his sermons. He wanted to see the best in everybody and to struggling literary people, his appreciation was the tonic that incited to better achievement. He had no contempt for even poor work, provided it represented the best in the writer. His friendship with the late A.P. Burbank (the reader and actor) was of a tender type. They were congenial through their love for books and nature and were drawn together in the long pedestrian tramps they took year after year. Once they walked from the mouth of the Connecticut River to its source. No picturesque bit of scenery on their way escaped them and best of all they enjoyed their discoveries in human nature. Pedestrianism was not a fad with Judge Shurtleff, it was a part of his life. He did not wait for these long excursions, but every Sunday gave him coveted opportunity for his delight in out of doors. He was not a student of Nature in the technical sense, but he was her free-hearted and ever constant lover. His four trips abroad gave him intense delight. On the first trip to Europe he went second-class, but told the captain that he "was a first-class man on a second-class fare," and so had the run of the ship. His second trip was made in 1887, when he took especial delight in a visit to Ecclesfield, the home of his ancestors. The owner of the ancestral hall offered ready hospitality to the handsome tourist from the States. Again in 1890 he went to meet Col. George Bliss and family of New York, with whom he made a cruise among the Shetland Islands. His fourth trip was a voyage to the Mediterranean. In 1839 he came to Springfield with his parents and at the age of nine entered a private school, then attended Williston seminary; after which he entered the class of 1854 at Yale, but did not graduate, being given the degree of A.M. in 1866 when he was restored to his class. He formed a lifelong friendship with E.C. Stedman, the poet, who also did not graduate, but received his A.M. in 1871. Upon leaving college he studied law in the office of George Ashman, then at the height of his fame, and also at the Harvard Law School. He was admitted to the bar in 1856, forming a partnership with the late Judge Henry Vose, who went on the superior court bench. Then he formed a partnership with George Walker, afterwards consul-general at Paris. Soon after the war broke out he entered the army as a private in Company A, Forty-sixth Regiment, but at a company election was made lieutenant, and at organizing the field and staff was promoted to lieutenant-colonel. After three months' service in the field he was promoted to the colonelcy. His regiment volunteered to serve in the crisis that culminated in the battle of Gettysburg, although its term of nine months was up in June and was mustered out July 29, 1863, on Hampden Park. Upon his return from service Gov. Andrew, in 1863, appointed him judge of probate and insolvency. He succeeded the late John Wells and it was a high test to which the young lawyer was put; but he made his own record in his own way. He had given satisfaction to the public and the lawyers, and in his long judicial career — one rarely exceeded in the state — only one or two of his decisions have been reversed by the supreme court. He was prominent as a Mason, having been master of Hampden Lodge, high priest of Morning Star Chapter and commander of Springfield Commandery of Knights Templar at one and the same time. He developed a taste for literary expression, wrote readily and gracefully and in verse. His idyl of "Minnetonka" and his ode on Springfield's 250th anniversary are exceptionally musical. The following is entitled "The Way":

First find thou Truth, and then,
  Although she strays
From beaten paths of men
  To untrod ways,—
Her leading follow straight,
And bide thy fate.

And whether smiles or scorn
  Thy passing greet,
Or findst thou flower or thorn
  Beneath thy feet,
Fare on! nor fear thy fate
At heaven's gate.

The next, "Youth and Age," might have been called his favorite:

What makes us young? 'Tis not that o'er our brows
Time sheds not yet his chill hibernal snows;
It is not that the step is firm and light,
The blood still bounding and the eyes still bright,
The voice unshaken and the form unbent,
For these to age are often incident.
What makes us old? 'Tis not the hoary head,
The faded eye, the weak and shuffling tread,
The trembling voice, bent form, and failing sense,
For these are sometimes youth's accompaniments.
Take from the heart love, purity and truth,
And man is old, though in the bloom of youth;
While he who keeps them in their pristine bloom,
Is ever young, though tottering o'er the tomb.

He was also author of "The Quiet Observer":

I met a friend the other day,
And made to pass with careless nod;
He stopped and smiled; I did not stay,
And would not see his proffered hand;
I was "in haste" (—you understand?)
I knew he thought it very odd,
But smiled again and went his way.
Next morning, in the news I read,
Through tears of grief, that he was dead!
And now, I must (understand!)
Forever see that unclasped hand!

He had great delight during the last two years in the home he had established in Longmeadow; a fine old colonial mansion which he had enlarged and enriched since his purchase and had named "Shirecliffe." This estate was formerly the Ely mansion and it was here that Rev. Eleazer Williams, the supposed dauphin of France, was brought up. Long were the arguments presented for and against his claim to be the genuine Louis XVII. The house was built in 1756 by Dea. Nathaniel Ely and was the most portentous on the Connecticut River.

He m. (2) in San Anselmo, Cal., Mar. 12, 1949, Mabel Gertrude (Mitchell) Dunn, b. in Gridley, Cal., Oct. 23, 1901; widow of H. Arthur Dunn, Jr.; dau. of Edward F. Mitchell and Erma Florence (Rogers). He was one of the founders of Blyth & Co., Inc. in April, 1914. He retired in 1962 with title of Honorary Chairman of the Executive Committee. Since that time, he devoted time and money to the hobby of bringing up to date the "Descendents of William Shurtleff" (see Foreword). In 1975, he made the following observations: "My children have asked me to add to the mere genealogical statistics some narrative that would show the changes in the era which took place during my life. My father died when I was less than three years old so I was raised by a frugal, religious and loving mother who was ambitious for her children. I had one half-brother and two half-sisters, one living at home. These were children by her first marriage. I was the only Shurtleff. Mother often told how she came to California. Her mother was a widow living near Cleveland, Ohio. In 1865, she decided to go to California. She took her two younger children, went to New York, lived in a hotel until she could get passage on a steamer to the Isthmus of Panama. En route they were chased by a confederate privateer but they escaped and joined a pack train which traversed this Isthmus to the west coast. Here they camped with hundreds of others waiting for a ship to take them to San Francisco. When it finally came, they crowded on it, some sleeping on the decks. En route grandmother met a family bound for the mining country so joined them. Mother was sixteen years old. It couldn't have been more than a year or two after that when she married John D. Meek, a druggist in Grass Valley, Nevada Co., Cal., who died in 1883. She married my father, in 1885, and moved to Nevada City, Cal., where I was born. In those days California was a hard money state. Mother told how when she invested in a little store property in Grass Valley she paid $900 for it, all in gold coins. My sister who was with her said, "You told me you didn't have enough money to buy me a doll". Whereupon the seller, a Mr. Coleman, gave her a five dollar gold piece. Later, even when I was a young man in business in San Francisco, my salary was paid in gold coin. After the first World War in 1918, paper money began to appear. When I was a youngster in Nevada City, it was still a frontier community. The main industry was gold mining. Travel through the mining country was by stagecoach, and gold was shipped thereon via Wells Fargo. Stage robberies were frequent and I can remember on one occasion a posse riding passed our school with a captured robber tied to his horse, being taken to jail. At least by that time they got a trial. Mother moved to Berkeley, Cal., in 1898, to put my sister, Nettie Meek, in the university. I can remember the excitement at that time of volunteer soldiers training for the Spanish-American War, when the battle cry was "Remember the Maine", and Teddy Roosevelt stormed San Juan Hill in Cuba. When we lived in Nevada City we had oil lamps, an outdoor privy, and we heated bath water on a wood stove. In Berkeley we had electric lights, one bathroom, and later even a crank telephone. In about 1902 I saw my first automobile, a little steam car, probably an Oldsmobile or White Steamer, go by our house and chug up a steep street. In 1914 I bought my first auto, an Overland with planetary drive, like the Ford Model T. Some times the drive (no gears) slipped so badly that the only way I could go up a hill was to back up. In 1916, I gave my wife a Ford Model T sedan for Christmas. With it was a piece of poetry, ending "A Ford sedan is no tin can". It seemed a necessary explanation. In 1921 we acquired our first radio. It was a little crystal set and a single listener had to plug in an earphone. By 1926 modern type radios were common in homes and automobiles. In my high school and college days, 1905-1912, the entertainment world for young people was chiefly vaudeville, accompanied by a short moving picture. The first movies were the silent ones. I think the first speaking movie I heard must have been about 1917. Our first television set (black and white) was in 1945 to 1949. During my life there have been, so far, three major depressions —

1907, 1929, and 1974. There have been two World Wars and many lesser ones. Deficit spending became a regular way of life for the United States and other governments of the western world, and the price of gold has risen from $20.67 an ounce to nearly $200.00 an ounce. However, the economic and health conditions of the average American have greatly improved."

He was the patriarch of a large Shurtleff clan, a loving father and grandfather. At the time of his death, he was survived by his wife, one son, seven daughters, fifty-three grandchildren, and fifty-seven great-grandchildren.

He was a real pioneer. He was one of the first white children born in the Lonetree area. He was always interested in the Shurtleff genealogy and had been helpful to Benjamin with material for the 1912 edition.

At the time of his death, he had worked on and was about to publish a "History of Bridger Country".

His ranch home was destroyed by a sudden fire and with him went his books, but the history on which he was working was at the publishers.
